

DECEMBER 2013

Equity Market Overview

CNX Nifty and the Sensex ended the month on a weak note as they were down by 2.0% and 1.8% respectively during the month. Weak economic data and the threat of a rating downgrade by global rating agency S&P created negative sentiments in the market at the very beginning of the month. Though the agency affirmed the rating of 'BBB minus' on India, it however retained its negative outlook and warned that a downgrade is imminent if after the general elections next year, the new government fails to arrest falling growth.

HSBC Services PMI contracted for October for the fourth consecutive month at 47.1 points versus 44.6 in September pointing to continuing weakness. HSBC manufacturing PMI too contracted to 49.6 points—the same as in September. Though the composite PMI rose slightly to 47.5 points in October from 46.1 points in the previous month, it was still in contraction. Signals from the Fed also remained mixed and added to the weakness in the market.

IIP grew 2% YoY in September on an annualised basis with mining, manufacturing and electricity showing growth rates of 3.3%, 0.6% and 12.9% respectively. Though the IIP number was slightly lower than the market's expectation, it does provide some room for optimism in the coming months. Meanwhile, Oct -13 WPI inflation rose to an 8-month high of 7% from September's 6.46%. Also, the August WPI inflation was revised upwards to 6.99% from a provisional figure of 6.1% which added to the negative sentiments.

Towards the end of the month however, the market started to see a recovery mainly on the back of hope of political victory for the BJP in a majority or all of the state elections being held—which in turn may reflect the mood for the general elections being held the next year.

The sectoral indices showed mixed trends during the month. The highest gainers were BSE Cap goods index (up by 7.3%) and BSE Metal index (up by 2.6%) while the main losers were BSE Consumer Durables index (down by 8.9%) and BSE FMCG index (down by 3.7%).

Most of the global indices ended the month on a positive note, except Indian indices. Nikkei markets gained the highest at 9.3% followed by Shanghai at 3.7%. Nikkei strengthened as the yen tumbled on speculation that the Bank of Japan is looking to add to its massive stimulus efforts to rejuvenate the world's third-biggest economy. The Shanghai index also showed strength on positive manufacturing data from the Chinese economy.

Fixed Income Overview

Worse-than-expected employment data in the US pushed up hopes of a prolonged tapering deferral, as global markets cheered the data. Eurozone showed a marginal recovery trend with latest quarterly GDP print coming in at 0.3% YoY v/s -0.3% for the preceding quarter.

RBI's monetary policy on Oct 29 was along expected lines, with a 25 bps hike in repo rate, along with a 25 bps cut in the MSF rate, while increasing the limit under term repo. While hawkishness has been maintained given the persistently high inflation prints, the low 'core' inflation has been acknowledged. RBI has also announced the imminent introduction of retail CPI-linked bonds. While the average cost of RBI-supplied liquidity remains ~8%, the marginal rate will determine the money market curve.

INR remained stable around 61/$, as ~34 billion USD was garnered under the FCNR-B scheme. The market was bit apprehensive with the re-induction of the Oil Marketing Cos into the open market, but their entry into the currency market passed off without any incident and the Rupee was range bound throughout the month between 62 to 64 to the USD.

The 10 year Gsec yield moved up on the rate hike action by RBI. The 10 yr yield which was 8.55% at the Oct rose to a high of 9% by the end of November. The anti inflationary bias of the central bank took a toll on yields right through the end of the month.

Certificates of Deposits (CDs) 2-month yields fell further from 9.5% to 8.8% as the overnight rate is being normalized to the repo rate and as more liquidity was infused into the system by RBI via increased LAF limits.

LAF remained at the newly constrained levels of ~Rs.40,000 crores, while MSF averaged ~Rs.38,000 crores for the month, down from Rs.70,000 crores last month, as RBI refrained from roll-over of CMBs of Rs.52,000 crores. Also, export refinance facility was utilized by banks remained steady ~Rs.40,000 crores.

Globally, all markets took joy at the signing of a long awaited agreement between Iran and USA regarding the containment of Iran's nuclear program and consequent lifting of sanctions. Oil dropped to around $100 USD before moving back to $110. If Iranian oil enters the market and consequently the oil price falls, then that can contain the Indian fiscal arithmetic from running amok. Any diesel price hike will help the fiscal math.

The clear change in the policy stance will continue to act as a dampener for long-term yields, while short-term rates will continue to trend downward, as the yield curve normalizes over the next 3-6 months. The possible announcement of OMOs may be the only silver lining for long-term yields.
